Conference Announcement No. 2

Wood – the material of the 21st century

Woodworking and forestry for material and construction needs in an innovative economy

The role of wood and forestry in the modern economy is essential and multidimensional, covering aspects related to the production and use of raw materials, taking into account the need for environmental protection and sustainable development. Forestry provides a valuable raw material such as wood, which is used in architectural structures and furniture making and for further processing into wood based products, paper, or composites. In the face of the need for ecological transformation and sustainable development, wood is a rational choice as a construction or finishing material. New technologies make it possible to create more durable and functional materials. An innovative approach to wood and forestry, based on scientific research, is an essential step in building an economy of the future that will be innovative and, above all, eco-innovative. Sustainable management of forest resources, providing wood as a raw material, is the key to preserving biodiversity and protecting ecosystems, which is necessary for maintaining a well-functioning natural environment.

Conference topics:

- ◆ Wooden construction and engineering structures,
- ◆ Mechanical properties and wood processing,
- ◆ Eco-innovations in woodworking and forestry,
- ◆ Wood engineering materials,
- ◆ Modifications of wood and wood-based materials,
- ◆ Protection of wood and forest resources,
- ◆ Forestry and wood harvesting.

Membership of the scientific committee:

PhD, DSc Paweł Kozakiewicz, Prof. SGGW, WULS, Poland - Chairman

Prof. Piotr Beer, WULS, Poland

Prof. Dorota Dziurka, UP, Poland

Prof. Mariusz Mamiński, WULS, Poland

Prof. Radosław Mirski, UP, Poland

Prof. Heorhiy Hrynyk, UNULT, Ukraine

Prof. Alena Očkajová, Matej Bel - UMB, Slovakia

Prof. Dr. Lina Karlinasari, IPB University, Indonesia

Prof. Ing. Ján Sedliačik, PhD., TUZVO, Slovakia

Prof. Jegatheswaran Ratnasingam, UPM, Malaysia

Prof. Shahrizan Zainal Abidin, UiTM, Malaysia

Doc. Ing. Iveta Čabalová, PhD, TUZVO, Slovakia

Doc. Ing. Aleš Ház, PhD, STU, Slovakia

PhD, DSc Piotr Borysiuk Prof. SGGW, WULS, Poland

PhD, DSc Agnieszka Jankowska, WULS, Poland

PhD, DSc Grzegorz Kowaluk, Prof. SGGW, WULS, Poland
